Our City Comment & discussion

by THOMAS D.
WATSON

President
Harding's
Work Remains in Structure of the United States

GLENDALE, along with the rest of the country, mourns the loss of the President of our country.

The city is still bedecked with flags and bunting, placed to do honor to his presence. Glendale and the surrounding cities had counted so much on being privileged to see our President that his death comes as a more distinct shock, for yesterday he was right in our midst and today we mourn his loss.

WARREN G. HARDING, President of the United States, was regarded as a friend of the war torn nations of Europe. They too, will feel his death for his passing affects their destiny, at least temporarily.

THE people of the United States are to be congratulated on being permitted to have had Warren G. Harding as their executive during the most difficult part of the re-construction period. A man, such as he proved to be, was God sent. By having a steady hand at the tiller the ship of state has steered a straight course towards the goal of prosperity.

HIS administration has been a most difficult and trying one and he has handled the situations in so quiet a way that the results have been attained without strife or discord. In fact, in so quiet a way that a great many people did not appreciate the difficult period we were passing through. Nothing spectacular which would gain the plaudits of the people, but through conscientious achievements which will last during the generations.

THE strain attached to the duties of President of the United States is terrific, so much so that the most rugged constitutions are tried to the utmost. In addition to the regular routine a trip such as recently taken by President Harding and by President Wilson during his administration is too much. The strain of accepting modern time hospitality has proved to be the breaking point.

THE passing on of our beloved President, Warren G. Harding, does not mean that the government will not go forward. His able stewardship gives the momentum which will permit our next President to carry on.

That he will do his utmost to complete the good works started by President Harding is a foregone conclusion. He has already given this assurance.

The business of the country need not be affected for while we mourn our loss we glory in the knowledge that Calvin Coolidge is an able successor to Warren Harding, made more efficient by the foresight of the president in taking him into his confidence and sharing with him the executive responsibilities.

THE PRESIDENT'S MIND CLEAR TO THE END

[By Associated Press]

SAN FRANCISCO, August 3.—President Harding's mind was clear to the last.

Never for a moment, according to Secretary Hoover of the Commerce department, who had been extremely close to him, did his mind wander even under the burning of the fever from which he suffered and his demeanor throughout his illness was composed and collected, even occasionally verging on the humorous.

"Almost everyone who went into his room was greeted with a joke," said Mr. Hoover. "He was cheerful always and remained interested to the last in his surroundings and in those who were permitted to approach him."

Mr. Hoover said Mr. Harding had once overestimated his strength, saying that on last Monday afternoon the president "got half out of bed reaching for his bath robe."

[By Associated Press]

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 3.—Calvin Coolidge, sworn in a few hours before as president of the United States by his father, left for Washington at 7:30 o'clock this morning. Accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, Congressman Dale and two federal employees who had been hastily pressed into service duty, the president left by automobile for Rutland, where a special train was prepared to take the party to New York. Colonel John C. Coolidge, the president's father, who is 73 years old, resisted the efforts of his son to induce him to make the journey to the capital.

Neighbors from Plymouth and nearby towns gathered to wish the president "Godspeed." From Ludlow, Woodstock and Bridgewater, came men who had gone to school with one they remembered as "Red" Coolidge. An army of newspaper men and photographers invaded quiet Plymouth Notch until the start to Rutland became a procession of automobiles. Within a few hours the lonely farm house had become a mecca for hundreds. Less than an hour after Mr. Coolidge had learned of the death of Mr. Harding, a telephone was installed in the house and the president had learned direct from Washington the form of the oath of office and the fact that his father might have the honor of administering it. In the meantime Congressman Dale had arrived from Springfield with two federal employees.

As soon as the brief swearing in was over the president and Mrs. Coolidge retired to gain a little rest before the trip to Washington.

PRESIDENT VISITS GRAVE OF MOTHER

[By Associated Press]

RUTLAND, Vt., August 3.—A visit to his mother's grave on the outskirts of Plymouth was part of the itinerary of President Coolidge in his automobile journey here today, enroute for Washington.

The president was manifestly careworn when he reached the railroad station accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge. In the poem gathered to greet them was Governor Redfield Proctor and Earl S. Kingsley.

Brother-in-law Recalls His Words on Passing of SAN FRANCISCO, August 3.—President Harding had a premonition that his last illness was to be fatal, according to a statement by Elbert E. Rensberg of Santa Ana, his brother-in-law, to newspapermen.

Mr. Rensberg said that the thought of death had been present in the executive's mind very often since he was brought here last Sunday and that he several times spoke of the fact that several members of his family had died at about his age.

Against Suits for Paving

The Glendale city council went on record last night as being determined to do everything possible to protect the citizens of Glendale in the matter of the suits that have been brought against many local property owners by the law firm of Stedden & Blanchard of Los Angeles, because of the assessments in connection with the improvement of Los Feliz road remaining unpaid.

Councilmen Hall and Davis were appointed as a committee of two from the council to confer today with those bringing these suits with the aim of having them dropped. On motion of Councilman Kimlin a member of the Glendale engineering department was authorized to go into this matter for the purpose of aiding in this work.

"We believe the action of those bringing these suits to be an outrage," said Councilman Kimlin, "and we are determined to do everything we can to assist the property owners who are being imposed upon. We have talked this thing over to some extent in the committee of the whole and understand the proposition pretty well. We certainly are ready to go as far as we can."

The matter was brought before the meeting by G. H. Wendle, local attorney, who is handling the cases of a number of those against whom suits have been brought.

BRITISH OFFICIALDOM SEES PEACE DELAY

LONDON, Aug. 3.—To British officialdom one of the disappointing effects of President Harding's death on international politics is the probable delay in mobilizing world opinion with regard to the Ruhr and the final reparations settlement with Germany.

NEW PRESIDENT WHISKS TOWARD WASHINGTON

[By Associated Press]

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—President Calvin Coolidge was whisked thru New York late this afternoon on his way to Washington. From the Grand Central station he motored immediately to the Pennsylvania terminal and departed in another special train at 5:42 o'clock daylight saving time.

Escorted by secret service men and a small army of police, the president, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, rode in a freight elevator to the street level and left by Forty-fifth street entrance, avoiding the crowds which had congregated in the concourse and at the Forty-second and Park avenue entrances.

The trip to the Pennsylvania station was made through crowds lined with rush hour crowds who stood silent with bared heads, as the cavalcade escorted by mounted and motorcycle policemen moved swiftly by.

At the station the president fumbled in his pocket and a man in the crowd jestingly inquired if he were going to buy a ticket. The president, his face solemn and impassive, ignored the jest.

President Coolidge refused to receive a small army of newspaper men who went to catch his train. He said he was feeling fine and that he planned to go immediately to the New Willard hotel, his Washington home as vice president, where he would make his headquarters until some time after President Harding's funeral. He said he would not visit the White House, wishing to give Mrs. Harding as much time as she wished to make her departure from the executive mansion.

The president spoke no word as he alighted from the train at the Grand Central terminal, merely nodding to a few old friends.

PICKED UP DRUNK

J. Carscaden, 906 South Broadway, Los Angeles, was arrested Thursday night by Officer Heminger at the corner of Gardena and Los Feliz, Glendale, the charge against him being drunkenness, according to the police records, which state that a full pint and a half-pint bottle of intoxicants were found in Carscaden's pockets when he was taken into custody.

RUPTURED BLOOD VESSEL CAUSED DEATH

Physicians Agree on the Cause of the Passing
President

[By Associated Press]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—The five physicians who attended the President were united in their decisions as the cause of death.

A bulletin issued last night and signed by all of them, declared it was due to apoplexy or a rupture of a blood vessel in the brain near the respiratory center. The statement emphasized that death from such a cause might have occurred at any time, and came after recovery from the acute illness from which he suffered for a week, was in progress.

The statement showed conclusively that the physicians as well as everyone else believed up to the minute the executive was subjected to the apoplectic attack, that he was on the road to recovery. Three hours before the end came the most optimistic bulletin was issued since the President was taken. It declared he had "spent the most comfortable day since illness began."

MRS. HARDING IS BRAVE IN AFFLICTION

Burial to Take Place at Marion, Where He Met His Struggles in Early Life Among Humble Surroundings and Left Only to Become Head of Country

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—(By the Associated Press) A nation today mourned the passing of its leader. The American people from coast to coast and from lakes to gulf and in the territories beyond the seas bowed their heads in grief, for their president was dead. In the early hours of last evening, after a day which had brought renewed hope of recovery, death came suddenly and struck down Warren G. Harding with a stroke of apoplexy.

The end came instantly and without even a second of warning at 7:30 o'clock. There was no time to summon additional physicians, no time to call the members of his official family and no time for medical skill to exercise its knowledge. It was all over in the twinkling of an eye, and it left a nation and world shocked and in grief.

Mrs. Harding, the constant companion of her distinguished husband, was faithful until the end. She was reading to him a few minutes before 7:30 o'clock when she noticed a shudder run through the frame of the man she had loved, encouraged in adversity and praised in success. Before she could arise from her chair, Mr. Harding collapsed in his bed, and she rushed to the door calling for the physicians to come quickly.

Brigadier General Sawyer, chief of the staff of physicians who have been attending the chief executive who also was in the room, and the two nurses present, Miss Ruth Powderly and Miss Sue Dausser, did all they could, but it availed nothing.

The president had fought and won one victory against disease, but it appeared in a more insidious form, and he lost the battle. Great as was the shock to all who dwell under the American flag, and to peoples in many lands, for Mr. Harding by virtue of his office, his kindly and his lovable personality had become a world figure, the great shock came to his wife, the great shock came to his wife, the great shock came to his wife.

"She was shocked, of course, and at first unable to realize that she had lost her husband who had made up all the interest in her life for so many proud happy years," said General Sawyer later.

"But there was no collapse, no hysteria. Just a brave rally to face her sorrows and the duties devolving upon her at this hour."

Mrs. Harding was standing, the shock well early today but whether she could stand up under the grief that bore down upon her as the sad journey back to Washington is made was another question. Those who know her best say that she will.

When dawn crept over the mountains and lighted up the Golden Gate this morning, almost all of the arrangements for this trip—the saddest trans-continental journey in the history of the nation—had been made. The trip will be started about 7 o'clock this evening, and should end in Washington Tuesday morning.

At that point the arrangements have not been definitely made but it is expected that the body will lay in state in the rotunda of the capital where a sorrowing people have oftentimes before paid their last respects to the leaders and the heroes they have lost.

The burial will be made at Marion, Ohio, the small Ohio city which Warren G. Harding made known around the world because from poor and humble surroundings, he struggled upward until the American people awarded him the highest gift and paid him the greatest honor within their power to bestow.

President Harding was a man who loved the "home folks" and if he had had time to leave a parting word last night, it undoubtedly would have contained instructions that he be buried in the town that knew him as "Warren," and where he called most everyone by their first names.

The trip across the continent will be made on the same train that carried the chief executive, a well, happy and hopeful man to the Pacific Coast. Its route will take it through Reno, Ogden, Cheyenne, Omaha, Chicago and then to Washington. It will make no stops except to change engines and for other operating purposes.

PRESIDENT'S BODY STARTS EAST TONIGHT

Leaves San Francisco at Six o'Clock for Chicago

[By Associated Press]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—The body of President Harding will be taken at 6:30 o'clock this evening from the Palace Hotel where he died and will be borne direct to the train at the Third and Townsend street station. The train will leave as soon as thereafter as possible.

The route of the funeral train from Chicago to Washington had not been decided upon up to 10 o'clock this morning, such detailed plans being held up pending the arrival of Secretary Christian from Los Angeles. Mr. Christian was due to arrive shortly before noon.

Sharply at six o'clock the body will start from the hotel to the station through streets which it is expected will be densely lined with mourners and will reach the railway carriage at 6:30. With the cashed aboard the train will immediately pull out on its trans-continental trip.

The pall bearers were announced as follows:

Attorney General Daugherty, Secretaries Work, Wallace and Hoover, General Pershing, Speaker Gillett, Governor Richardson of California, Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, Admiral Simpson, commander of naval forces of the Twelfth Naval district, Major General Morton, commander of the Ninth Corps area.

TWENTY HOURS TO REACH WASHINGTON

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—The train carrying President Harding's body to Washington will arrive in Chicago on Monday after a 72-hour run from San Francisco, which begins tonight at 6:30 o'clock. From Chicago to the national capital the train will follow the Baltimore and Ohio tracks through Deshler, Akron and Youngstown, Ohio, and thence to its destination by way of Cumberland, Md. The run from Chicago to Washington will be made in twenty hours.

BAY CITY IS OVERCOME BY DEATH SHOCK

Mourning Draperies Replace Flags on the Streets

HOTEL IS VERY BUSY

Condolences Pour Into Stricken Entourage of Late President

[By Associated Press] SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—San Franciscans went about their duties today sorrowfully in a city differing from that which they had seen on their homeward way last night, resplendent in honor of the visit of the president, who, it was believed, was well on the way to recovery from illness. Gone were the flags, gone was the hunting, gone were the displays centering around the presidential emblem which had marked the streets and larger buildings. Instead, workmen were busy hanging long black drapes and streamers, symbols of San Francisco's grief across the fronts of their buildings.

The hotel corridors leading to the suite occupied by President Harding, for days before the goal of hundreds who ranged in position from the highest to the most humble, were more congested today than at any time since the executive, weary and suffering, was brought here last Sunday morning.

With three cabinet officers staying in the same hotel, the inevitable stream of visitors calling to pay their respects or to transact some official business, naturally would have been large. With the president ill, thousands more came to inquire as to his condition, to present their wishes for his recovery or to offer help. Some offered the use of country estates as places of recuperation, some suggested means they hoped would alleviate the president's sufferings and send numbers brought flowers or baskets of fruit.

Last night word of the president's death operated to summon numerous others—reporters, officials and the merely curious. For hours after the news became public, the corridors were jammed with persons of all classes.

Secretary Hoover was the first cabinet officer to enter the room so lately visited by death. As he emerged a few minutes later, he choked with emotion and said to the waiting reporters, eager for some definite word as to what had occurred:

"Boys, I can't tell you anything." Then came Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, who in his capacity of physician had been summoned with the other doctors who have been attending the president.

Secretary Wallace of the agricultural department was the next cabinet officer to enter and he, like Mr. Hoover, was so overcome as to be unable to express his sorrow.

After them came Attorney General Daugherty, close friend of Warren Harding, the man, adviser of Warren Harding the candidate, and trusted counsellor of Warren Harding, the president. He had been disappointed on arriving here Wednesday that he was even unable to look into the sick room of his friend, and his face showed plainly the suffering that Mr. Harding's death caused him.

The four members of the cabinet joined later in saying their grief was too acute and the shock of the president's death was so great that they could not issue a formal statement at the moment, but would do so later.

Captain Allen Buchanan, commander of the navy transport Henderson, on which President Harding sailed to Alaska, was another who came to the presidential suite to offer condolence. He promised that all the Henderson's complement, officers and men, would march without arms in the procession escorting the body to the train.

"The ship will march every man of its personnel," said Captain Buchanan, "we could not do less, particularly for one who has been as good as Mr. Harding was to us of the Henderson when he was aboard."

Admiral Hugh Rodman, who accompanied the president to Alaska, showed the deep grief he bore when, with face grave, he stepped from the elevator and went to the presidential suite. General Pershing, who followed him, was so overcome with grief that he could not speak but merely bowed, choked and went on.

Major General Charles G. Morgan, commander of the Ninth corps, and Rear Admiral Simpson, commander of the Twelfth Naval district, were others whose faces showed, as they came to pay formal calls of condolence, that they felt they had lost a friend as well as a commander.

Amid all the expressions of sympathy that came from Americans high and low, were some from foreign governments. The first of these was from Great Britain, her vice consul general here, C. E. Crane, calling on behalf of his chief, Gerald Campbell, who is absent from the city.

About a score of members of the presidential party, guests at a dinner given by Representative Julius Kahn, received the sad news by telephone and were shocked by the suddenness of the end. Mr. Kahn said, "we are so stunned that it is impossible to talk."

Representative Charles F. Curry of California, who was one of the

DEAD EXECUTIVE LIES IN QUIET, CALM REPOSE

With Eyes Closed He Seems Just as Though Asleep

[By Associated Press] SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—As in life, so is President Harding in the quiet dignity of death, calm, composed and of peaceful mien.

In a gray draped room far above San Francisco's busiest street, all that is mortal of America's twenty-ninth president rested today.

But for the closing of the eyelids by loving fingers, it was as if it had been a moment after the president, pleased by what Mrs. Harding was reading to him had said:

"That's good. Go on, read some more." The body is robed in white, dressing for burial having been deferred until late in the day and lies upon the bed where the president made his losing fight for health. The face is almost of its natural hue. The lips are slightly parted.

SOMBER NOTES IN THE ZERO MOMENTS

President Harding died without warning from apoplexy while Mrs. Harding was reading to him at 7:30 o'clock last night, Pacific coast time.

Calvin Coolidge took the oath as president of the United States at Plymouth, Vermont, at 2:47 a. m., today. The new president was sworn in by his father, who is a notary public.

"That's good, go on, read some more." These were the last words spoken by the president to Mrs. Harding.

Mrs. Harding, brave and strong, faithful to the end, did not break down in the hour of her greatest grief.

Calvin Coolidge declared: "The world has lost a great and good man. I mourn his loss. It will be my purpose to carry out the policies which he has begun for the service of the American people."

The body of President Harding will leave San Francisco on special train about 7 o'clock Friday evening and will go direct to Washington via Reno, Ogden, Cheyenne, Omaha and Chicago.

One of President Harding's special questions on the last day of his life was: "How did the Cincinnati Reds come out yesterday?"

Car carrying President Harding's body will be lighted at night and at all times two soldiers and two sailors will stand attention guarding the casket.

President Coolidge further said: "I have faith that God will direct the destiny of our nation."

President and Mrs. Coolidge sent this message to Mrs. Harding: "We offer you our deepest sympathy. May God bless you and keep you."

Telegram announcing President Harding's death was read to Mr. Coolidge by his father, while the vice president was in bed in a house just across the street from the spot where he was born.

NO MOURNING TO MARK CAPITOL AT LYING IN STATE

[By Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The capitol, where the body of President Harding will lie in state and where probably general services will be held, will not be draped in mourning, nor will any public buildings in Washington be so draped because of an act of congress of March 3, 1893. It was enacted by congress because the practice had caused discoloration of a number of buildings, and provides that "hereafter no building owned or used for public purposes by the government of the United States shall be draped in mourning and no part of the public funds shall be used for such purposes."

It has been arranged, however, to drape the president's room, at the capitol as well as the interior rotunda where the body will lie in state, upon the catafalque prepared and used for the funeral of Lincoln. The last use of it was in November, 1921, when the body of the unknown soldier rested upon it before burial in Arlington.

COOLIDGE IS PRESIDENT OF NATION

Takes Office in Plymouth, Vermont, in Father's Home

STARTS FOR CAPITAL

Pledges Himself to Sustain Harding's Policies in Service

[By Associated Press]

PLYMOUTH, Vt., August 3.—Vice-President Coolidge became president of the United States this morning when he took the oath of office in the living room of his father's home in this little mountain village, where he was born. Three hours earlier he had been notified of the death of President Harding, and a brief statement had expressed his grief at the passing of his "chief and friend," and his purpose of carrying out the policies "which he began for the service of the American people." President Coolidge made immediate preparations to start for Washington. He left here for Rutland on his way to Washington at 7:30 a. m., eastern standard time.

A messenger who had hastened here from Bridgewater, the nearest telegraph office, brought word of the president's death to Mr. Coolidge in the form of the following telegram from George B. Christian, Jr., the president's secretary: "The president died instantly while conversing with members of his family at 7:30 p. m. The physicians report that death was due apparently to some brain embolism, probably apoplexy."

Mr. Coolidge's father, John C. Coolidge, received the message shortly before midnight and took it upstairs, where he read it to the vice-president, who was in bed. Mr. Coolidge quickly dressed in a suit of black and came downstairs, followed a moment later by Mrs. Coolidge. He dictated two brief statements to his secretary and then distributed copies to the newspapermen who had gathered in the living room of the farm house. His first statement follows:

"Reports have reached me, which I fear are correct, that President Harding is gone. The world has lost a great and good man. I mourn his loss. He was my chief and my friend. It will be my purpose to carry out the policies which he has begun for the service of the American people. For the purpose of all those who have been associated with the president during his term of office. Those who have given their efforts to assist him I wish to remain in office that they may assist me. I have faith that God will direct the destinies of our nation."

A little later Mr. Coolidge made this statement:

"It is my intention to remain here until I can secure the correct form for the oath of office which will be administered to me by my father, who is a notary public, if that will meet the necessary requirements. I expect to leave for Washington during the day."

To Mrs. Harding, the vice-president and Mrs. Coolidge joined in sending the following telegram: "We offer you our deepest sympathy. May God bless you and keep you!"

Mr. Coolidge, who had come here for a complete rest, had welcomed the absence of a telephone from his father's home and during the president's illness had walked several times a day to the village store to receive over the telephone the latest word from San Francisco. But with the news of the president's death, telephone officials immediately set to work to give Mr. Coolidge every facility for communicating with Washington and elsewhere and within an hour a telephone had been installed in the farm house.

It was through telephone communication with Washington that the vice-president obtained the exact form of oath which the constitution requires the president to take upon assuming office. In the presence of Mrs. Coolidge, Congressman Porter H. Dale and a little party of friends, Mr. Coolidge quietly went through the simple ceremony which made him president. His father read by the light of an oil lamp on the table the impressive words of the oath of office:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and I will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

Mr. Coolidge calmly and clearly repeated the words and added: "So help me God."

The ceremony ended, the president turned at once to preparations for his journey to Washington.

The Cantons are the highest rank in the Odd Fellows.

MRS. HARDING IS WATCHED; BREAK IS ANTICIPATED

[By Associated Press] SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—Mrs. Harding, though bearing up well under her grievous loss, had the services of a nurse throughout last night. Wives of cabinet officers who accompanied the president on his westward trip alternated as her companions. One of these today said the courageous helpmate of the late executive had stood the strain well, but had slight rest. She emphasized, however, that Mrs. Harding was far from collapse or hysteria and had made no evidence of emotion beyond the expression of her grief natural in the circumstance.

REV. CALDERWOOD DISCUSSES NEW PRESIDENT

Claims Him as Congregational Church Trustee at Northampton

Rev. C. M. Calderwood who came to Glendale from Massachusetts and who is therefore very familiar with the career of President Coolidge, said:

"President Coolidge is conservative, reliable, scholarly and religious. He is a graduate of Amherst college, and a trustee of Edwards Congregational church of Northampton. He is of puritan training as his name, 'Calvin' indicates, his forbears having come to this country in 1630 or only ten years after the landing of the Mayflower."

Like most men holding high public offices he is very reticent, does not care to converse freely or make public speeches. He is not a man of ostentation. His home in Northampton, before he went to Washington, was a modest dwelling for which he paid a rental of $35 a month.

He has had legal training and very successfully filled the mayor's chair in Northampton, and is very highly regarded by everyone who knows him. As governor of Massachusetts, he distinguished himself in several crises, especially during the police strike when he called out the state militia to take the place of the strikers and thus promptly met a very difficult situation in a manner which endeared him to the people of Massachusetts.

"I am sure the country will not suffer in his hands. He is a strong man who will make his personality and judgment felt in the conduct of affairs. He will not be a figure head, but I am confident he will endeavor to be loyal to President Harding's program."

HARDING'S DEATH CLOSING MEETING OF COUNCIL

Councilmen Adjourn Immediately Upon the Receipt of News

To show its respect to President Warren G. Harding, the Glendale city council adjourned its regular meeting Thursday night immediately after the business which for legal reasons had to be transacted, was finished.

The news of the president's death was received by the council at about 8 o'clock. Councilman Horn immediately imported the news to those waiting for the open council session. The work of the committee of the whole was stopped and the members of the council took their places in the open council chamber.

The announcement was then made by President protom Davis, that to show respect to President Harding, whose death had occurred but a few minutes before, only the business which should, because of legal reasons be transacted, would be taken care of.

Bids for street work were opened, and the matter of the suits brought in connection with the assessment for the improvement of Los Feliz road, which was of an unusually important nature, were discussed for about five minutes.

Councilman Horn then moved that the council adjourn until its next regular meeting on Monday night. This was seconded by Councilman Hall, and the vote was unanimous.

EFFECT OF DEATH IS DISCUSSED BY BUSINESS MEN

Conditions Too Well Organized to be Disturbed It Is Said

The death of President Harding and what effect, if any, it will have on the financial and political situation, were the themes of many discussions among business men of Glendale this morning.

R. F. Kitterman of the Security National Bank said: "Much as I deplore the death of President Harding, I see no reason in a country as great as is the United States and under so organized a government, why the death of a president would seriously affect the country. Business conditions are too well established to be disorganized by such an event. While we cannot but feel a common depression over the loss of the nation's head, nevertheless I see no occasion for any alarm because of it."

Earl Pendroy said: "I understand that Vice-President Coolidge, who took the oath of office last night and is now president of these United States, has issued a statement to the effect that he will retain the present cabinet and follow the policies adopted by President Harding. This will have a stabilizing influence and prevent any upsetting of business. As to its political effect, it will in my judgment, strengthen the position of Hiram Johnson as a candidate for the presidency at the next election."

Attorney W. E. Evans, chairman of the Republican County Central committee, said: "I do not think the death of the president will have any material effect on the business situation throughout the country inasmuch as it is well known that President Coolidge is in sympathy with the Harding policies. I think it quite possible that a new political situation will be opened up by the elimination of the personality of Harding. It will undoubtedly bring Herbert Hoover into more prominent consideration as a candidate for the presidency at the next election."

A. R. Eastman of the Glendale State Bank said: "We all wish to express our deep sorrow and sympathy in the loss of the president of the nation and while we deeply regret it, I do not feel that it is going to affect the financial situation because President Coolidge is a very able man well qualified to take the place of Warren G. Harding. He has demonstrated his ability on other occasions and is a very efficient man well known all over the country. The manner in which he completes President Harding's term may have an important effect on the political situation."

D. H. Smith of the Pacific Southwest Bank said: "In a business way I do not expect the death of President Harding to have any material effect on business. I see no reason why it should. The vice-president, who is now President Coolidge, is a good man who will undoubtedly carry out the Harding policies."

NEW YORK IS IN MOURNING

[By Associated Press] NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—New York today became a city of silent mourning the loss of Warren G. Harding. Cabarets and roof gardens were the first to close. Unaware of the president's death, men of finance rose to face their daily tasks but Wall Street forgot its barter. Banks were not permitted by law to close except on legal holidays, remained open but otherwise the financial district soon took on the air of a deserted village.

Six months ago the re-nomination of President Harding without any substantial contest seemed assured. One of the men who was regarded as his likely principal opponent for the nomination had confessed to a colleague and friend that he found himself without an issue.

The president's pronouncement for entry of the United States into the world court, however, altered the situation materially, and during the last few weeks there has come definite information through mysterious channels, because political captains maintain their intelligence systems, that all was not going to be as clear sailing as had been expected in the republican convention of 1924, and that there might be a contest after all.

FAR-REACHING PARTY EFFECT OF DEATH

Harding Was Choice of Conservatives for Re-nomination

[By Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—President Harding's death throws new complexities into the political situation within the republican party which undoubtedly will have far-reaching reflections in the national convention of next year.

It probably will turn what many expected to be merely a ratification meeting into a contest for the republican presidential nomination with the stalwart conservative republican forces aligned on the one side and the forces represented by such leaders as Senators Johnson of California, Borah of Idaho, and La Follette of Wisconsin, on the other.

While the present members of the cabinet remain in office without further action by the new president, such is not the case with the diplomatic missions abroad. On the arrival in the capitol of President Coolidge it is expected that confirmation in his name of the letters issued to ambassadors and ministers by President Harding will be sent forward by cable without delay.

FEW CHANGES IN GOVERNMENT ARE TO BE EXPECTED

[By Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, August 3.—Although work in all government departments is at a standstill today, the death of President Harding is expected to bring about few immediate changes in the administration organization. President Coolidge has expressed a wish that all serving under Mr. Harding remain in office and his desire probably will be fulfilled.

It would cause no surprise if the first to sever his relations was Harry M. Daugherty, the attorney general. Mr. Daugherty has been in ill health for several months. He managed Mr. Harding's campaign for the presidential nomination.

HARDING DOCTORS RANKED HIGH SAYS DR. H. V. BROWN

President of State Board of Examiners Describes Them

Dr. H. V. Brown, of this city, president of the State Board of Medical Examiners, in speaking of the death of President Harding, said:

"The country may rest assured he had the best medical attention the United States affords and that everything possible from a medical viewpoint was done for him. Brigadier General Sawyer, his family physician, is distinguished in the profession. Dr. Lyman Wilbur is one of the most eminent medical men in the profession. He is president of the American Medical association as well as president of Stanford University. If no one else had been in attendance the president would still have had the best care he could have received. Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, was one of the eminent physicians of Colorado when he accepted a cabinet portfolio."

Probably no one is jumped on so quickly or so hard as the minister who happens to stray from the straight and narrow path.

LOST IN JUNGLE OF SACRAMENTO JAIL

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 3 (United Press).—The latest tangle, "Lost in the jail," might be the title of a book written by Cecil Wandz, a Folsom youth, who was wanted here on a bad check charge. For more than two weeks police hunters for Wandz. Then Wandz was "found" at the county jail where he had been locked up under the name of Joe Sims and then been overlooked.

ALASKANS PLAN MOOSE FARMING

[By Associated Press] ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Aug. 3.—Moose farming may be conducted on the same general scale as cattle raising, with the added advantage that it is not necessary to feed the animals if a good birch cover is available, according to experts here. Two moose, captured and brought to Anchorage to be shipped to the states for propagation purposes, have deserted all other natural foods for alfalfa hay and ordinary grass grazing, and took to a grain diet in winter.

The care of the moose has raised the question of propagation for domestic use as well as to conserve the animals, which, last winter, died by thousands because of the ravages of rabbits which ate every live birch of a height of four feet, leaving the animals only such limbs as were out of the reach of rabbits.

With the revelation in connection with the propagation of moose is the one showing that reindeer adapt themselves to the food in the region in which they are grazing, and turn to reindeer moss only when there are no fire weeds and similar growth. The moss is an auxiliary feed in winter, being the only ground plant that does not freeze, but like the birch trees, it retains sustenance for herbivorous animals.

There are wide areas in Alaska unfitted for anything except moose range, local men point out, and steps are being taken with a view to establishing the first moose ranch near Anchorage, where conditions are said to be ideal for the animals.

1,000,000 FOR RAILROAD TRIP

[By Associated Press] BILLINGS, Mont., Aug. 3.—In order that a matter of mere railroad expense would not deter C. P. Johnson, secretary of the Billings real estate board, from attending the National Real Estate Men's convention at Cleveland recently, the Cleveland real estate board sent him one million with its invitation. However, the million was in Russian rubles, having a value of approximately $1. The Cleveland board pointed out that in 1915 Mr. Johnson could have cashed in about $510,000 for his expenses.

OLD FASHIONED HAYRIDE AND WATERMELON FEED IS HELD BY THE DYNAMOS CLUB MONDAY NITE

"Watch the way and fortify thyself in power mightily," that is the motto of the Dynamos Club of the Glendale Presbyterian church. However, it is quite evident that last Monday night their motto was changed to "Ride the hay and fortify thyself with watermelon mightily."

The picture shows this happy crowd just before they started for Happyland Park (formerly known as Verdugo Woodlands Park). "This good old fashioned hayride and watermelon feed is only one of the several social events the club has held during the last year," said Harold Jones, president, "the bunch like a good time and we like to give it to them so long as it is clean and wholesome. The club meets every Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church. Any fellow between the age of 16 and 21 is welcome to visit the club. The more the merrier, as the old saying goes."

TEARS ARE AMISS IN BUSINESS

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Women to succeed in business must learn to dress comfortably without losing the charm of their sex, and to take correction from the boss without weeping, according to Mrs. Alice Foote MacDougall, New York business woman. Mrs. MacDougall, who predicted recently that within a century, women will be "doing all the business," said that the observance of a few simple rules would hasten the time when they would take over such control. Other suggestions were: "Discuss abstract questions without making personal application of everything that is said. "Stick to agreements without squirming if you are getting the worst of it. "Say 'no' at the right time."

GIRL DIVER IN OLYMPIC GAMES

[By Associated Press] SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 2.—Miss Bernice Phelan, 11-year-old diving prodigy who, with only three weeks' experience, defeated some of the most experienced aquatic stars on the coast at Del Monte, Calif., recently, is being considered a possibility for a place on the American Olympic games team which will compete in Paris next year. Up to the time of the Del Monte meet, in which she captured the senior diving championship of the Pacific Association, A. A. U., her entire "career" had been limited to three weeks of practice under the tutelage of Phil Patterson, former national champion.

DOORS OF EGYPTIAN CAFE 'SWING WIDE AT NOON AND WELCOMES ALL GLENDALEANS

Inspection of Novel Resort and Artistic Innovation in Eating Place Is Invited by the Management and Owner, Robert Jensen

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

When the beautiful Egyptian Cafe which is being established by Robert Jensen in the Palace Grand Shops opens its doors to the dining public next Saturday evening, Glendale will have taken another step on the road to becoming a real city. That all its citizens may have opportunity to inspect the unusual place of entertainment, it will be thrown open to visitors Friday from the noon hour to 10 p. m.

It is worth seeing, and if the dinners and lunches which will be served there prove worthy the environment, it will certainly be a popular resort.

Of course, the setting has been made to fit the name. The main dining-room, or Egyptian Cafe proper, which extends across the front of the building on the balcony floor, is an octagonal room measuring 52 by 25 feet, which is expected to accommodate 100 guests when full.

A dark, heavily padded velvet rug covers the entire floor; similar coloring is found in the tall, straight-backed over-stuffed chairs, but contrasts to these sober hues are found in the hangings and mural decorations. French doors open into supper rooms to the right and left of the corridor, which can be thrown into it and thus convert it into another octagonal dining-room even larger than the one across the front.

The north and south walls at the ends of the Egyptian room are centered with mural paintings, one picturing the Sphinx against a desert background, the other in exactly similar coloring, showing Egyptian pyramids with palm trees in the foreground.

The balance of the wall is painted in bronze and green, blocked off with black. Overhead, the ceiling has been canopied in orange and black canvases to suggest, no doubt, an Arab tent. Hangings at the French doors are also of canvas treated with the tie-dye process, to provide a more pronounced color note. In these a central oval of green fades into blue splashed at the margins with red. In the corridor which leads from the carpeted hall, which will also serve as a promenade and lounge-room, the skylight has been covered with the orange and black striped canvas which, with the light showing through it, takes on a flame color.

In the afternoon tea room, to the right, which has been christened the "Tiffany Room," and which will seat about 25, the same general coloring has been observed, with conventional scrolls decorating the wall panels.

Opposite this and across the corridor on the north is the "Peacock Room," in which that bird of pride—Glendale's special emblem—features the mural embellishments. This room is centered by a large rectangular table and will be used for private supper parties of about twenty.

The mural decoration throughout is the work of Zamude Brothers, Spanish artists who have recently come to California from Mexico.

A fourth apartment, and one of the most interesting in the suite, is known as the "Oriental Room." Here Chinese designs have been carried out in the wall paintings, one of which represents an idealized Spanish galleon riding upon a green sea, against a background of gold and bronze; another pictures a lute player, against a similar background offset by conventionalized trees. This room will seat about fifty.

Opposite, across the corridor, to the west of the Tiffany room, is a very up-to-date and interesting kitchen over which Chef C. M. Johnson, for 32 years with the Potlister hotel at Santa Barbara, will preside. Assisting him will be a Chinese cook, for whom a Chinese range has been provided that he may be able to manufacture chop suey and other Chinese dishes in perfection.

There are, of course, an American range of the latest model, charcoal broilers for grilling meat, large steam tables, ice chests, electric dish washers, large ovens in which all pastries will be baked, a soda fountain for soft drinks, and a mechanical mixer for mashing potatoes and whipping cream. It is a room which housewives will want to visit.

These are just the high points. Accessories of many sorts will carry out the motifs in the various rooms. The boudoir lamps used in the Egyptian room, for example, will be true to type, and the Oriental room will utilize Chinese figurines for standards.

Girl waitresses will serve patrons and will be uniformed in green and orange with white caps and aprons. While Robert Jensen is the owner, Charles Swanson, who has supervised the decoration, has been engaged as manager, and E. O. Jones as steward. All these gentlemen are exceedingly busy working out details for the formal opening as a cafe Saturday evening at 5:30.

Mr. Swanson explained that it will not be a cabaret, though a good orchestra will furnish music during the dinner hour. At 9 o'clock the rug will be removed in the Egyptian room and dancing will be permitted from that hour to 12 midnight.

SPANISH SHAWLS IN VOGUE
For evening wear Spanish shawls are much in vogue. Especially beautiful is one which has a sea green background upon which are embroidered pink roses in a multitude of harmonizing shades.

PREVIEW SET FOR T. D. & L. THIS EVENING

AN INVITATION TO ALL GLENDALE!

To all my grown-up brothers and sisters and the little tots like myself who live in the wonderful city of Glendale, I am sending this invitation.

Tonight at 8:30 at the T. D. and L. theatre I am going to make my first appearance before you in a beautiful picture story of the earlier days of our own California, called "Something to Live For."

Geel! I hope you will all like this picture and my part in it as I am taking my very first baby step into Starland. Right now I am only six months old but some day I am going to grow into a great big woman and I hope into a great big star. You folks can help me do this by coming to see me and liking me. I am doing my best to please in this very beautiful and out-of-the-ordinary picture. Everybody come.

Truly yours,

ANTOINETTE.

P. S.—When the play gets exciting and you get all worked up and think every minute is going to be my last—don't get scared. Remember we are all just acting in a story of make-believe. Nobody, not even the Indians, gets killed until they are really dead, and it all ends fine.

Striking at the root of most marital troubles, a growing apart of couples through different interests, "Divorce," Jane Novak's latest screen offering, directed by Chester Bennett, reached the local screen yesterday with its showing at the T. D. and L. theatre.

Besides being a convincing narration of the experiences of a young couple, whose affairs threaten to go on the rocks when a sudden accession of comparative wealth causes the husband to seek more expensive diversions, it is also drama of the first water, clean, clear-cut and compelling. Jane Novak impresses, by her playing of the young wife whose deep love for her husband and an abounding faith that she will be able to win back his wavering affections cause her to remain unresponsive to the insinuations of acquaintances and the arguments of relatives, that she give up her spouse as a bad job.

SWANSON SCORES TRIUMPH IN EGYPTIAN CAFE

Decorator's Latest Work Is Dazzling Success
in Colors

The latest triumph of Charles M. Swanson, one of the leading interior decorators of Southern California, is the designing and decorating of the Egyptian Village cafe, which is destined to create a real sensation in Glendale. Mr. Swanson has been doing interior decorating and artistic painting work for many years, but through his entire career he has accomplished nothing that approaches in originality of design and artistic finish the work done in this most unique of dining halls.

During the past few months the residents of Glendale and visitors to this city have been marvelling at the wonderful coloring and uniqueness of design in the finish of the Jensen Palace Grand shops. It is the most remarkable building of its kind west of Chicago. The novelty and the blending of the colorings of the decorations are a marvel to all who see them. All of this work came from the brush of Mr. Swanson.

The work done in connection with the Egyptian cafe is even more remarkable than that done in the other portions of the Jensen building. Those who will visit the Egyptian cafe are destined to receive an agreeable surprise. In the decoration of this establishment Swanson has done his best for the entertainment of those who will patronize this charming cafe.

UNION PRINTERS' HOME HOSPITAL REMOVAL PLAN

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 3.—Removal of the hospital of the Union Printers' Home at Colorado Springs, Colo., to make way for a new hospital unit has been undertaken and for a period of two months the institution will be pressed for facilities for caring for inmates. It has been announced at headquarters of the International Typographical Union here.

Delay in acceptance of applicants for admission will be unavoidable until early fall, it was said.

The old hospital building will be reconstructed on another site near the main building and a new modern hospital building will be erected on its present site. The Home will then be prepared to care for a greater number of inmates than ever before, including victims of locomotor ataxia and other ailments, for whom there has not been a suitable place in the past.

More than sixty-five applications for old age pensions within the International Union were made in the month ending in July, according to Secretary-Treasurer J. W. Hays. Nearly all the applications will be acted on favorably. In order to obtain the union pension it is required that a member shall have been a card holder for 20 years, and that he shall be more than 60 years old.

COMMUNITY CHEST COMMITTEE OF C. OF C. MEETS

Discusses the Ways and Means of Securing Funds

Members of the community chest committee of the chamber of commerce, of which Dr. Newton is chairman, assembled seven strong at the chamber Thursday evening, viz., Mrs. H. E. Bartlett of the Red Cross; Mrs. A. A. Barton, representing the Tuesday Afternoon club; C. W. Ingledue, representing the Advancement association, and Y. M. C. A.; D. Ripley Jackson, representing the Exchange and Shrine clubs; Harold Benner of the Boy Scouts; V. M. Hollister, representing Community Service; Mr. McGinnis, and Dr. Newton, chairman.

A letter which Dr. Newton had received from Lynn D. Mowat, who was assistant director in the San Francisco community chest campaign, and chief director in Oakland's drive, was passed around. In it he tendered his services for a consideration and set forth in some detail the work to be done.

When the committee was called to order, the chairman asked each member present to express his or her opinion in regard to the employment of a paid organizer.

Mr. Hollister said there were advantages and disadvantages in paid organizers, and he would want to consider the matter more thoroughly before committing himself.

Mrs. Bartlett said she would like to have the committee investigate the procedure in Pasadena where the community chest had been successfully inaugurated, before committing itself to any plan.

Mrs. Barton said: "As large a thing as this requires experienced help, even if we have to get it from the outside. It would be wiser to have such help and put it over than to have well intentioned local people who are inexperienced in that kind of service. I am in favor of having an experienced person."

Mr. Ingledue said: "I do not think it would be advisable to put over a program of this sort without the inspiration and backing of outside help. In every drive we have put over we can see where we would have fallen down if we had not had outside help, notably the Y. M. C. A. drive where the help came to us voluntarily and without cost."

Mr. Benner said: "I do not know of a community chest that has been put over anywhere without outside help, and I have been in touch with community service organizations all over the country. A thing like this requires thorough organization and we do not want to risk having a failure the first time. I think the attitude of Mr. Eastman president of our Boy Scout Council, would be to have an outside man."

D. R. Jackson: "I feel we cannot do it without outside help. Glendale is only a young city just getting out of its infancy. We will be criticized whatever we do. My recommendation would be for a paid organizer and campaigner."

Mr. McGinnis: "For as small a budget as we will have, I cannot see the necessity for any paid outside help. The chamber put on a drive largely through the cooperation of the all over the country. I believe we could get from Pasadena and from San Diego the help of men who have been through it in their own communities. In San Diego where we paid 5 per cent on a $200,000 budget it aroused considerable antagonism."

Mr. Newton agreed that outside inspiration and assistance would be needed but believed it could be secured as a matter of reciprocity from other cities whom Glendale could repay with like service when they put on drives.

Mrs. Bartlett urged immediate action as the local Red Cross Chapter is being even urged by the Public Division to get busy on its plans for a November drive.

An endeavor was made to estimate the probable amount that would be needed to meet the annual demands of the various causes for which Glendale has been subscribing, and the figures ranged between $50,000 and $75,000.

Announcement of the president's death was a shock which adjourned the meeting and Chairman Newton stated the next committee meeting would be a luncheon of which notice would be sent to committee members.

Dr. Newton stated that as soon as a working plan had been perfected the community chest would be regularly organized as an official body working in affiliation with the chamber of commerce, and that local heads of the organizations for which drives have been made would be asked to submit budgets which would be passed upon by a disinterested body of well known men and women of the city selected for the task.

'LUCK' IS TONIC FOR THE BLUES AT GLENDALE

A sure way to start off any day in the proper spirit is to go and see "Luck" at the Glendale theater the night before. Here is a picture which we can recommend as a tonic to weary minds and bodies and low spirits. "Luck" is the most enervating picture it has been our duty to see this year. Only in this case it was for once not a duty but a pleasure.

Several times before we have written in these columns about this young man Johnny Hines who is the very breath of life in all the pictures he plays in. This youth who swept onto the screen last night before our eyes seemed to clear the air about us and clear our minds of all the weary, drooping thoughts that filled our heads all the day long. When an actor, and particularly one on the screen who can convey his personality only through pantomime to us can accomplish that, he can be counted as a sure leader in his chosen work. If Johnny is not already accepted as such it is our prediction that he won't have to wait long. He's arrived.

The story itself is particularly adaptable to the star's peculiar personality. It is full of racy, breath-taking action from the moment the first foot is unreeled to the time the last foot folds itself back again out of sight. There is never a lagging bit in it. Nor is humor neglected. It is in fact, one of the best of the kind. "Luck" Laugh and let live seems to be this comedian's motto. And withal in between the laughs he scatters such real thrills and drama that he is something more than a comedian. He is a real tragic actor.

By all means see "Luck" at the Glendale theater. To miss it is to miss an enlightening experience.

ST. MARK'S GUILD HOLDS MEETING

Members of St. Mark's Guild held their meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. F. Muffie, 117 East Acacia avenue with twenty-four present. Rev. Kemp of the Episcopal church led the devotional exercises. At the business session reports of officers and committee chairmen were given.

It was decided that the annual bazaar of the guild would be held on November 23 and 24, location to be announced later. It was voted that there would be no more food sales until the last Saturday in December. The regular weekly noon-day luncheons will be continued every Thursday at 11:30 a. m. The next meeting of the guild will be held the third Thursday in August with Mrs. J. L. McOmber.

During the afternoon refreshments of punch, ice cream and home-made cake were served by the hostess.

Glendalians Get News at Exposition

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Naudain and other Glendalians who were in attendance on the Monroe Exposition Thursday night say that the announcement and behavior of the great audience there assembled when the news of the president's demise was communicated, was most impressive. A man appeared upon the platform and asked for absolute silence as he had an important announcement to make. He then stated that President Harding had expired at 7:30 and offered prayer. The band then played "Nearer My God to Thee" and the audience dispersed.

PHILADELPHIA STORAGE BATS ARE REDUCED

Factory Sends Important News to Mr. Psenner Here

Mr. Psenner has just received word from the Philadelphia Storage Battery company that a substantial reduction has been made on all batteries manufactured by them. The factory announced that tremendous increases in sales and economical distribution have made these lower prices possible. Despite the radical price reduction, the same high quality will be maintained in all Philco batteries.

"This price reduction came most unexpectedly," said Mr. Psenner, "and is sure to prove happy news to the multitude of car owners in Southern California, many of whom will need new batteries at this time of the year when summer heat commences to take its toll of the old."

"The price of Philco batteries is now the lowest ever offered for standard batteries, which gives motorists the highest type of standard battery for approximately the same cost as especially constructed price batteries."

"Three different types of Philco batteries gives motorists a choice of one, one and a half, or two year guarantee battery depending upon the number of months battery service he wishes to buy. If the battery delivers more months of service than the guarantee calls for, which is the rule, the motorists is that many months to the good on battery service. If, however, the battery for some reason or other, fails to deliver the number of months' service called for in the guarantee, the dealer makes good the difference on a pro rata basis."

MRS. R. L. YOUNG GIVES CHARMING GARDEN PARTY

A very charming affair was the garden party that took place Wednesday at the home of Mrs. R. L. Young of 1007 North Brand boulevard in the form of a bridge-luncheon held outdoors under the large trees. Japanese lanterns hung from the branches. Tiny miniature Japanese lanterns were used as nut cups. This same motif was carried out in the place cards and score cards.

Those present included members of a card club that has not as yet been named and included Mrs. Lionel Wolfe, Mrs. Harry McCarty, Mrs. J. A. Endicott, Mrs. F. Clark, Mrs. Payson Hayward, Mrs. W. A. Tanner, Mrs. Wendt and Mrs. R. L. Young. Mrs. Porter substituted for Mrs. D. Young. Mrs. Line for Mrs. Kimball and Mrs. Donald Baxter for Mrs. T. J. Keleher. Just as luncheon was being served a wire was received from Mrs. Keleher at Catalina Island.

First prize at bridge was awarded to Mrs. Wendt, second to Mrs. Wolfe and consolation to Mrs. Endicott.

Paris Shoppe to Open on Saturday

Highest grade merchandise at the lowest possible cost and personal attention to customers are two of the outstanding features to be carried out by S. Rosenblum, who has announced the grand opening of "The Paris Shoppe" at 223 North Brand boulevard, that will be held on Saturday, August 4, beginning at 9 a. m. All lines of women's wearing apparel, with the exception of shoes, and also women's furnishings and millinery will be carried by this new shoppe.

"Through my connection with eastern houses it will be possible for me to sell the highest grade merchandise for the lowest cost," Mr. Rosenblum states.

The interior of the Paris Shoppe will be quite French. The fixtures and furnishings are all carried out in a soft gray finish combined with rose tints. Those who have seen the preparations being made for the opening state that "The Paris Shoppe" will be one of the most attractive stores in Glendale. Handsome souvenirs will be given with every purchase made on the opening day.

Sherrod's Celebrate Second Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Sherrod proprietors of Sherrod's Social Shop, located in the beautiful Jen sen building at 133 North Brand are celebrating their second anniversary in business in Glendale, and while they are not putting on a sale for this event they are joining with the firm located in the Jensen building in their efforts to welcome the Egyptian cafe, which opens on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherrod have reason for rejoicing for they have built up a fine business in ladies' furnishings among the best and most discriminating buyers in Glendale and vicinity, and they were forced to move to the Jensen building a few months ago in order to get more room to accommodate their growing business. The Sherrod Shop carries a most complete line of ladies' lingerie including high grade corsets, hosiery, etc., and they make it a point to sell the very best at the lowest possible prices.

A special invitation is extended the ladies of Glendale to visit the Sherrod Shop while down town this week.

ROTARY CLUB IS SUFFERING FROM VACATIONS

Many Visitors Make Up for Vacancies in Local Ranks

On account of this being vacation time, attendance at the regular weekly noon-day meeting of the Glendale Rotary club on Thursday at the auditorium of the Citizens' building was not as large as is generally the case. There were quite a number of visitors present, among them being Leonard F. Collins and J. J. King of Burbank, Bill Mason of Raymond, Wash., John Bloeser of Los Angeles, Ross Blakey and Frank Crowell of Alva, Oklahoma.

A special business meeting for the members of the Glendale Rotary club will be held Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. The place of meeting will be at the Baldwin Shirt company's plant on South Brand boulevard at San Fernando road.

J. I. Wernette, who has been absent for the past six weeks on a trip was called on to tell of his experiences. In introducing him, Dick White told a story on how Mr. Wernette had boasted Glendale while away. In his talk Mr. Wernette told about his impressions of the International Rotary convention at St. Louis, to which he was a delegate from the Glendale club.

J. J. King, a member of the Burbank Rotary club, was called on to give a talk and responded with a short speech on the subject of "Rotary Service." George Karr led in community singing in his usual snappy way. A number of new songs were practiced.

A committee was appointed with J. Hunter as chairman to study over the working of the new charter as re-drafted by the Los Angeles convention. George Karr who has returned from the east, presided at Thursday's meeting.

Offered $1,000,000 for Share in Estate, but Keep Jobs as Elevator Boys in N. Y. Hotel

Six members of one of Porto Rico's wealthiest families are working at menial tasks while awaiting a decision in a legal battle which may give them the entire $4,000,000 estate of their grandfather. Four brothers are employed as elevator operators and in the laundry of one of New York city's largest hotels. Three of them, Carlos, Mario and Raul Marini, are shown in the above photograph. They have been offered $1,000,000 in settlement of their claims but in their native town of Cabo Rojo, Porto Rico, lawyers are carrying on a legal contest which they declare will give the family control of the entire estate.

"Main Street" opened yesterday at the Gateway Theater for a week's run. It is a decided success, a picture with a punch, the picture of the year could say with exaggeration. Whether it be the masterly acting of Florence Vidor and Monte Blue, and the all-star cast, or the exceptional direction of Harry Beaumont, or the sheer strength of Sinclair Lewis' story, is hard to say. But what can be said is that these elements all combine into the making of a picture that one will have to go far to equal.

So finely did Florence Vidor interpret the role of the unhappy Carol Kennicott that it is difficult to try to visualize any other actress in this role. Another player could not have given it the many nuances of feeling, the fine characterization, the thousand and one touches that make the role live vividly. Carol Kennicott is a decided creation.

The story, very briefly, is of Carol Kennicott, brought to Gopher Prairie by her husband, the worthy Doctor Kennicott. She rebels against what she considers the narrowness and lack of culture in the small town; she wants to revolutionize it in a short time. But the inhabitants are easy-going and phlegmatic; they don't like being shaken out of their old ruts. The climax is fascinatingly worked out.

Supporting Florence Vidor and Monte Blue are the following: Harry Myers, Noah Beery, Louise Fazenda, Roberta Gordon, Josephine Crowell, Gordon Griffith, Otis Harlan and Allyn Hale.

ZOUANNE LODGE HOLDS MEETING

On Saturday night, August 4, a short business meeting, followed by cards until midnight, will be held by the Zouanne lodge of the Orientals at the Odd Fellows hall at 220 1/2 South Main street, Los Angeles. At midnight the members will join the Orientals in a moon feast.

At a special called meeting of the Zouannes held last week to elect a delegate to the grand lodge at Cedar Rapids, Mrs. Harris of Van Nuys was chosen. Mrs. Evelyn Hall and Mrs. Marjorie Pease of Glendale had been elected as delegates but declined on account of their duties as officers of the Rebekah lodge of Glendale. Mrs. Harris will leave for the east on August 6.

Major Driver of Los Angeles, grand high Hyastyttee, is also going as a delegate from the Oriental lodge and Mr. Marshall of Los Angeles, who is the organizer for the Oriental lodge. Upon her return from the grand lodge Mrs. Harris will institute the Zouannes. There are about 35 from Glendale who are members of this organization.

KAFATERIA SHOE STORE CELEBRATES

Opening of 15th and 16th Stores Is Occasion of Big Selling Event

The Kafateria Shoe store is celebrating the opening of its fifteenth and sixteenth stores with one of the biggest shoe sales in its history as will be seen from the large display advertisement in this paper.

"The array of shoe bargains will be a revelation to those who have been our patrons and are already familiar with our extremely low prices," said Manager Cushman of the Glendale store. "We intend to demonstrate to the public that it is possible to sell shoes at prices that will startle the most economical buyer, and we want every resident of Glendale and vicinity to visit our store during this sale."

A force of clerks have been busy marking the new stock brought here for this sale, and the advertisement elsewhere gives only a few of the hundreds of good values offered in shoes.

When it is understood that the Glendale store is only one of the 16 big stores owned by Sidney Glass, one can readily realize why it is possible to sell shoes at such reduced prices. Mr. Glass buys in large lots, pays cash and never fails to take advantage of any good proposition that is put up to him. Money talks and Glass knows how to make it talk the loudest, hence the phenomenal success of the Kafateria Shoe stores located in 16 of the best towns in California.

ALFRED W. KNIGHT WEDS MISS LEE OF SO. PASADENA

Of great interest to many friends in this city will be news of the marriage of Alfred W. Knight, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Knight, of 1301 East California to Miss Mildred Lee of South Pasadena, Wednesday, August 1, at 4 p. m.

The marriage was celebrated at the home of a sister of the bride, Mrs. E. D. Briggs, at 2002 Berkshire avenue, South Pasadena, in the presence of about sixty guests. Dr. W. O. Pritchard, assistant pastor of the First Congregational Church of Pasadena, officiated.

Miss Elsa Asenit of Glendale played the Lohengrin wedding march and Mrs. Haskell of Pasadena, sang "At Dawning" and another number before the ceremony.

The pretty bride was adorned for the marriage rite in a gown of white silk, lace trimmed, and wore a veil crowned with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Luella Lee as bridesmaid, the bridegroom being supported by J. H. Ise of this city as best man.

Following the ceremony refreshments were served on the roof porch of Mrs. Briggs' attractive home, and Mr. and Mrs. Knight left shortly after for a honeymoon at Catalina.

On their return they will be at home to their friends for the present at 1301 East California.

Alfred Knight was graduated from Glendale High. He attended the University of California but was graduated from "Cal. Tech." as a chemical engineer. He is now in the employ of the Celite Products company of Los Angeles.

CANADIAN CLUB MOURNS DEATH OF PRESIDENT

Dance Gives Way to Resolutions of Sympathy

Just as the dancing party and at home of the Glendale Canadian club was well under way at the Knights of Pythias hall at Park avenue and South Brand boulevard on Thursday night the sad news arrived announcing the death of President Harding.

Dancing was stopped and the order was immediately called to order by the president of the club and a resolution of sympathy for the people of the United States of America in the loss of their president was unanimously adopted.

Canadian visitors from Los Angeles, Hollywood, Pasadena, Burbank and Van Nuys returned to their respective homes in a very mournful spirit.

At a special called meeting of the Zouannes held last week to elect a delegate to the grand lodge at Cedar Rapids, Mrs. Harris of Van Nuys was chosen. Mrs. Evelyn Hall and Mrs. Marjorie Pease of Glendale had been elected as delegates but declined on account of their duties as officers of the Rebekah lodge of Glendale. TO THE LADIES

A Refined Hair-Cutting Parlor for Men, Women and Children

Who Want Their Hair Bobbed the Right Way

Beginning August 1st and two weeks thereafter we will make a special price of 50c for Bobbing Ladies' Hair—the usual price in all high-class places is 75c.

SERVICE FOR WOMEN

All first-class places in Los Angeles and elsewhere make a minimum charge of 75c for bobbing long hair, and that is also our standard charge, but, for two weeks we will make a special price of only 50c. We do this because we want the ladies of Glendale and vicinity to acquaint themselves with the many unique features of this hair-cutting parlor, which is dedicated to better service for the people, and where all combs, brushes, towels, etc., are sterilized immediately after use, and where regular customers have individual service combs, brushes and linen.

LATEST STYLES

We are in constant touch with hair style authorities of the east, and the experts here who bob your hair will frankly tell you of the latest fads, and will also advise you as to what is most becoming to your particular type.

SERVICE FOR CHILDREN

At this place hair-cutting of children is given special attention. As a rule children like to come here. Only expert hands touch their hair, and we exercise patience and care with them, so that they never dread the barber chair. Our location is very convenient for mothers who are down town on a shopping tour, and our modernly equipped and up-to-date shop is cool and comfortable. By all means bring the children here for their hair-cutting needs, and be sure that the job will be well done.

A MAN'S SHOP

Of course, this is a man's shop—most men of Glendale who are particular about barbers find it a pleasure to come to us. Our razors are sharp, and we use only the best standard materials.

The ass will carry his load, but not a double load; ride not a free horse to death. — Cervantes.

Let us a little permit Nature to take her own way; she better understands her own affairs than we. — Montaigne.

"AN IRRESISTIBLE IMPULSE"

A young chap called to account for having kissed a very pretty girl, a complete stranger to him, said that he had acted upon an irresistible impulse. In the circumstances the plea deserves some consideration, and should not be cast aside as frivolous. Let the facts be considered.

The smitten youth had called at a soda fountain for a cooling drink. The girl was behind the counter. It was her duty to prepare the beverage, and she did it with many a charming gesture, and the accentuation of lovely curves. The exercise brought a glow of color to her face, and set the alluring tresses dancing. And the counter was narrow, so the face was close to the spot where sat the suddenly-stricken youth. With no time to reflect upon the wickedness of such an act, he leaned over and kissed the girl, smack, just like that. Oh terrible the wave of remorse that flooded his conscience, perhaps; deep and bitter the indignation of the girl, maybe. Such things simply aren't done, with a crowd looking on.

They had to arrest the transgressor. When the act of obscenity assault shall appear against him, presenting the court to see the sort of temptation that the youth had been up against, the sentence is likely to be mild.

Often for a crime of serious nature, as robbery, forgery, or arson, the culprit advances exactly the plea by which this crying youth explained the wanton theft of a kiss. If the real criminals have what is known as a pull, this plea is as good as any, and is likely to prove adequate. Surely it will be permitted to soften the penalty exacted by an act of youth which after all was the mere expression of natural enthusiasm.

WOULD SAVE USELESS LIVES

"If murder by the state does not serve to prevent or lessen murder by individuals, then the state loses its one excuse for committing the social crime of capital punishment."

Thus an editor, whose heart evidently beats for the slayer rather than the slain, sets forth something that seems to pass as an argument with his type. The fatal weakness is in the "if." That word is used in this connection to create the impression that capital punishment does not prevent or lessen murder. Such impression has not the slightest basis in fact. The circumstance that there are more murders in any large American city than in the whole of the United Kingdom, is the answer to it, leaving nothing to be said.

Even the most enthusiastic lover of assassins will have to admit that an assassin, once he has been executed despite the tears of the maudlin, ceases from killing. Society that had feared him, fears him no more. This detail is worth some consideration, although in the mind of the proponents of unrestricted murder of everybody but the murderously inclined, the welfare of society matters nothing. It is only the red-handed element of society, preying upon the rest, that has a place in the affections of the sentimental sissy of either sex.

The reason for the high valuation on the life of the murderer, and the lack of any valuation whatever marking the life of the citizen likely to be murdered, never yet has been explained. The vicious thug is permitted to kill, virtually at will, but then, all at once his own life becomes a precious thing, to be securely guarded. Every safeguard thrown about it is an encouragement to the vicious, and an invitation for the criminally inclined to shed the blood of innocence.

AWAY FROM REVOLUTION

Ex-President Wilson, after long retirement, has expressed himself in a magazine article, "The Road Away From Revolution." The gist of it is that civilization cannot survive materially unless it be redeemed spiritually.

The truth of this assertion, and the vital importance of the truth, are evident and not to be denied by any thoughtful person. Indeed the belief embodied in the ex-President's paper, has been set forth many times. The difference is that it comes now from a source of more than the usual authority, and is given a force that not every proponent is able to impart to the language he employs.

That there is expected to be a change in the standards by which it is customary to measure success, and to be a difference in the relationships marking human society, must be admitted. Otherwise the likelihood, apparently amounting to certainty, that civilization will come to tragic end, must be admitted. It is impossible to assume that the carefully reared structure may stand the strain indefinitely. With a continent at war, or reduced to a distressful level because of war, and with no permanent peace in prospect, to say that the outlook is dark, is not to indulge unduly in pessimism.

Not that the case is hopeless. The human race in its centuries of struggle has reached in many respects a high plane. It is getting severe lessons at this moment, and the effect may not be lost. Its salvation rests in its own hands. If it elect to go down in ruin, it has but to keep on the path it is treading now, greed its inspiration and gold its goal.

"DIGNITY AND IMPUDENCE"

Commenting on the statement of Woodrow Wilson that civilization cannot survive without a spiritual revival, a paragrapher adds this:

"That is a great concession for him to make. We should imagine he would argue that civilization was likely to go blooey unless the democrats won in 1925."

Occasionally a writer achieves a work of magnitude, and finds that in some measure, at least, he has scattered his pearls of thought before swine. Mr. Wilson was not writing as a partisan. His view was that of the serious-minded citizen, a patriot to his country, and deeply concerned for the welfare of the world.

The thought expressed in the Wilson article was not novel. In some form less scholarly, it had been presented many times. It was a vital thought because based on a conception of the truth apparent to every cultured individual who has eyes to see.

The attempt to drag the Wilson paper down to the level of the jester brings to mind a once familiar picture entitled "Dignity and Impudence." The commentator should hunt up this picture, and behold himself portrayed there.

Inhibition of parking is getting so stringent in Los Angeles that the citizen owning an automobile is likely to leave it in the garage and go back to the old-fashioned street car.

"MAN HATING"

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

A girl, she who recently won the cross-country race from Brighton to London, announced at the end of the race that she hated all men.

Probably the young lady was tired; weariness, if it be sufficiently aggravated, will make any woman feel for a time that she hates everybody. The interesting thing about it is that it affects men in the same way.

However, the remark caused a bit of a stir among writers, many of whom took advantage of it to rise in meeting and say their say.

A British writer declared that a growing number of women indulged seriously in hating men, the cause of the emotion being that men are privileged characters and women restricted by unjust conventions.

But that has always been so; men took care of the arrangement and invented an assorted variety of devices, beliefs, superstitions, conventions and penalties all designed to secure to themselves the monopoly of the things they coveted while keeping the women in a state of subjection and self-depreciation calculated to destroy their self-confidence and render them helpless.

But this is the twilight of male gods, so why hate them?

More conventions, designed for "women only" have taken the count in the last 30 years than in all the years that preceded them; and never in history have men been brought to book for "double-moral-standarding" as they are today being brought to book.

Clipping the wings of masculine privilege is the greatest indoor sport of legislators, judges and attorneys who see in the restriction of male prerogatives a sure method of winning feminine favor — AND feminine votes.

In the Scandinavian states they have actually made men divide their worldly possessions with their illegitimate children with a consequent mighty increase in masculine virtue — or caution.

Did this access of male virtue make the women hate the men? Far from it.

How the men feel is not a matter of record; though they probably feel virtuous, and nobody has yet hated another who made him feel virtuous.

The point I am making is that as the causes which produced so-called sex-antagonism are removed, as justice replaces privilege and co-operation takes the place of authority and brow beating men and women will understand each other better and understanding has always been the foe of hatred.

Man hating women, woman hating men, simply do not exist; there are, to be sure, women who hate the restrictions from which men have made them suffer and men who hate women who have exploited them or trifled with them.

Educated women with better standards of justice look with contempt on men who try to stop the advance of women through fear or cupidity; but those advances would never have been made if men themselves had not embraced the new ideals for which women are fighting and had not fought side by side with them for a new and better order. That kind of co-operation between the sexes sounds the death knell of sex antagonism.

The next step in advancement is for everybody to quit talking about sex antagonism, which "there ain't no such animal" and get to conversing about the new alliance between the best men and the best women in the interest of the whole race.

This no doubt the young lady who won the race will do when she gets a bath and a rub down and a bit of well distributed powder on her nose.

THE RIGHT WORD

ERRORS IN A MANUSCRIPT

(Find the error in this article)

In the manuscript of a book, which was being prepared for the printer, the following common errors were found:

1. Error: "It is a fine thing for us to thus recognize."

1. Criticism: According to usage, thus should not be placed between to and recognize. The sentence should read, "It is a fine thing for us thus to recognize."

2. Error: "... than by the comradeship and healthful rivalry that results."

2. Criticism: The subject, comradeship and rivalry, is plural. Therefore, the verb should be result, not results.

3. Error: "... teach pupils to give each other a square deal."

3. Criticism: Each other should be used only when two persons are involved; one another should be used when one is referring to more than two. The audience looked at one another in astonishment; Pupils should give one another a square deal.

4. Error: "Some of the best things that have ever been said about education were said by the founders of our nation. And they believed all that they said."

4. Criticism: The word said appears too many times. Note the following: Some of the best things that have ever been said about education are attributable to the founders of our nation, who believed all that they asserted.

Right: ... so that they will not avoid your company.

The President is an important citizen. The most important in the country, we might say.

Because he is the head of the nation.

Much depends upon his policy with relation to industry and economics and foreign relations:

All of these things have a vital effect upon one and all of us.

For the welfare of all of us is dependent in a great degree upon the health of the nation.

If industry is affected, then all wage earners are affected.

And if wage earners are affected then merchants are affected.

And the producer is affected.

So it is important that the health of the President be preserved.

That he do not take undue risks and hazards.

One of us might pass off the scene of affairs and not even be missed.

But not so with the executive head of the government.

For with the passing of the executive head of the government there is political and industrial and economic uncertainty.

The President is the one and important official of the nation whose health must be preserved.

And ought to be preserved. Even if the people of the United States cannot see him on tour.

We have had two instances in succession of the ill effect of strenuous travel upon presidents.

And those two instances ought to carry a lesson.

That the President needs his health and strength for the business of the nation.

Even though there is temptation to travel and see the nation and its people.

Speeches by the scores. Weather intensely hot. The meeting of thousands of his countrymen.

Carrying out programs arranged by ambitious and proud communities. The sum of it enough to break the health of youth.

And Presidents are not young when elected. And they age rapidly after election.

So we hope we may go back to the tradition, if not the law, of the fathers.

That Presidents shall remain on continental soil.

That they shall not be dragged thousands of miles to talk at midsummer heat.

That their strength shall not be sapped with marches and parades and receptions and reviews and all that takes strength and endurance.

Otherwise we shall find that our Presidents will wear out quickly.

And the value of their experience be lost to us.

And that we shall find ourselves at a critical time in the history of the nation and the world bereft of executives.

Men who have reached the age of fifty-five or sixty are not constituted to stand the strain of a presidential tour reaching into tens of thousands of miles.

Especially after trying years of labor and care and concern and long hours of study and consideration of vital world affairs.

THE ACADY—By Charles Buxton Going

Across the hills of Acady
Into the Land of Song—
Ah, dear, if you will go with me
The way will not be long!

It will not lead through solitudes
Of wind-blown woods or sea;
Dear, no! the city's wearied moods
May scarce veil Acady.

Tis in no unfamiliar land
Lit by some distant star.
No! Acady is where you stand,
And Song is where you are!

So walk but hand in hand with me—
No road can lead us wrong;
These are the hills of Acady—
Here is the Land of Song!

TO REGULATE THE BIRTHRATE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SOME time ago Congressman Martin L. Davey of Ohio made public a suggestion he had received from a constituent that the United States government establish a bureau for the purpose of advising the people whether to raise large or small families.

According to the gentleman who made the suggestion some such device will be necessary to prevent overpopulation, statistics showing that if the United States continues to increase at the same rate it has maintained since the founding of the government it will have a population of nearly 4,000,000,000 at the end of the next 147 years.

This population bureau," said the correspondent, "could publish for the information of the public the number of births and deaths occurring in the United States."

"In the event that the bureau would advise the people to raise small families, if on the other hand the deaths should exceed the births the advice of the bureau would be that larger families be raised."

This suggestion might at first be received with amusement as another attempt to regulate instinct and nature by laws. But the truth is that the question here touched upon is the most vital of all social issues. Rusk said that the most fundamental of all reforms is the reform of marriage.

It stands to reason that

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

General Pershing said in his address at Los Angeles that peace-time patriotism was as essential as war-time patriotism. By this he rebuked the type of pacifists who are striving to make the country assume an attitude that must lead to defenselessness. If they think that the United States could promote world peace by placing itself unarmed at the mercy of hostile hosts, of course they have not thought deeply.

Peace-time patriotism does not by any means concern alone the possibility of war, and the necessity for being able to avert this by being ready for it. Such patriotism is broader. It concerns the building up of citizenship to a higher level, making education more general; suppressing the sentiment that rails against this country, trying to destroy it by undermining its faith in itself.

The man who attacks the constitution, while living under its protection, is a low and despicable type. He is as definitely a public enemy as though he came as an armed invader. A part of patriotism is to expose and suppress him. He has not an open mind and is not amenable to suasion. Force is the one element able to appeal to him. Therefore the ability to exercise force must be safeguarded, by reason of foes at home.

The lady who sends information concerning Russia must not think her kindness unappreciated. The trouble with the information is that it consists of excerpts from Unity and other bolshevik organs. Everybody would be glad to know the truth about Russia, and despite soviet subterfuge and inhibition, considerable of it is leaking out. But nobody seeking seriously to acquire the information, would think of looking for it in the columns of an organ of the reds.

There are some writers who cannot get away from the theme of "The Next War." It is a precious morsel over which they slaver and drool. Of course they are planning to have this war draw in all the peoples of the earth. They tell with gusto the horrid things that it is to accomplish.

Perhaps after all, the world has not gone crazy. Collectively its inhabitants may not present so startling a total of imbecility. In other words, the hope that the next war is not to materialize, is worth cherishing.

Chicago police have been requested to cease from the practice of bootlegging. The authorities feel that a bootlegger who is paid to walk a beat cannot do this to the greatest advantage if he must devote a share of his time and energy to being the sort of criminal that it is his sworn duty to arrest.

The request does not seem to be unreasonable. Indeed, were similar reforms to be suggested in all cities, the move would be sure of general approval.

Thomas E. Flynn, once editor of the Wasp, a stinging publication once well known in San Francisco, committed suicide the other day. At one time, with such a contributor as Ambrose Bierce, the sting of the Wasp was fierce but picturesque. It degenerated greatly in after years. Old-timers will remember Flynn, and not all of them with grief for his passing, although he had many friends.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI
YOUTH'S VAGARIES

"What can I do with my daughter? She is fifteen and instead of growing closer to me she is growing farther away. She used to come running to tell me everything that happened. Now she tells me nothing."

"I can't imagine the reason. It came about gradually until now I find myself shut out of her life. She has taken a sudden fancy to the mother of her school chum and tells her the little things she used to tell me! What can I do?"

Just be patient, and keep on loving her and letting her feel it. If, when she was very little, you taught her that she could count on you, if you listened when she talked and sympathized with her and helped with her plans, she will soon come back.

Moods are characteristic of adolescence. The children have strange lapses into gaiety or gloom. They take on new ways, sudden likes and dislikes, unreasonable enthusiasm and weird philosophies.

Girls who have been rather self-centered become man-like in their self-immolation, and boys who have been brave become gay and frolicsome. No mood lasts long. Many of them are puzzling and distressing to the parents and teachers of the children. One girl who had been rather exclusive, and given to drawing very sharp social distinctions suddenly became imbued with the idea that she was obliged to carry "light and uplift" to a girl who had no apparent understanding of either and no taste for them.

As the latter lived with her family in a tumble-down hut, on the edge of the town and had scarcely seen the inside of a school house, preferring to keep close to family tradition as to dirt and ignorance, the young lady's mother was shocked and horrified.

"It was my duty," said Adolescence firmly.

After about six weeks of visiting and playing and singing on the wheezy old melpotene to the unregenerate victim, she suddenly ceased to show the slightest interest in her. That phase was over!

A boy seemed to lose all regard for his mother's opinion and spent every moment he could snatch from pressing duties with a woman as old as his mother.

He was terribly downcast at the idea that he could never marry her. She was a widow and engaged to be married, but even that did not damp his ardor. It had to wear itself out—along with the widow's patience.

What can you do with the adolescent? You can keep a cheerful spirit and let its light fall upon him, warming him through and through. You can meet his vagaries with smiling tolerance and deep wisdom that teaches you to speak with solemnity and then only when very necessary.

A quiet gain at the loud tie and plastering hair; a matter-of-fact acceptance of the girl of the minute; or the "man of the hour," a broad taken-for-granted attitude will help over the worst places. The teaching of the first years will hold and they will swing back to common sense again, never fear!

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

I'm not so sure that we haven't advanced too far. Maybe our civilization is a mite too fine. Don't you think, just between us, that the whipping post is a rather useful institution now and then? Not for you and me, of course—

We believe in kindness. In the rule of the tender heart. We preach altruism and benevolence and sooth and good until we fairly drip with it. Yet it seems to me that the really worth while men I know are the bossy sort. Every man who got into history, unless he threw a bomb or made love to a queen, is that sort of a man. The sofies, somehow, do not seem to have made much of a dint on past generations.

Here is an everyday, right at hand, illustration of the inadvisability of permitting the heart to grow too soft. Old Tom Adams' trunk store was at one time the topnotch. Travelers used to route their journeys so they could buy their luggage of Old Tom. He could outfit you for a camel trip through the Sahara or a canoe voyage to the North Pole. He was the Boss, the Big Chief, the Loud Noise in his shop. Every employee did an elaborate flipflop every time they saw him. They obeyed him as a village priest would a cardinal. Tom's son Tim now reigns, and Tim is soft hearted and kind.

I tried to buy a trunk there yesterday and failed. The clerks were snippy and unapproachable. An outfit of men and women who died a thousand deaths every time Tom Adams cleared his throat treated me like a rather poor quality of leper. The business is going to pot.

Just because Young Tim's heart is too soft. He treats 'em like brothers. As an employee myself, I do not want to be treated like a brother.

LAWSON BUILDING IS MARK OF FAITH IN CITY

SIMONS BRICK CO. SUPPLIES LAWSON WITH MATERIAL

Product Is Found in Most of the High Class Buildings

It is not an exaggeration in the least when it is stated that the Simons Brick company has been a great factor in the upbuilding of Southern California as any other concern that has operated in the state. Few people really know the part this big company, which is composed of some of the best business men in the state, has played in swelling the phenomenal building record of Glendale and for that matter every town in the southland.

"It is not missing the mark very far to say that Simons' brick and material has been used in more than two-thirds of the brick buildings in the southland," said a man who is in a position to know in speaking of the operations of the Simons Brick company, which has its business offices at 125 West Third street, Los Angeles. In Glendale a fleet of Simons Brick company trucks may be seen most any day delivering big loads of brick or tile to the many buildings under construction. The four-story Lawson building, and the Glendale Daily Press building, covering a frontage of 100 feet and reaching back to a depth of 150 feet, with two stories just completed; the big Presbyterian church building, and other smaller brick buildings now under way, give ample evidence of the scope of activity of this company. A town, which has around 2,000 inhabitants, has been built by the Simons Brick company just outside the city of Los Angeles, and here more than 1,000 men are employed in the main brick making plant of the company. Good schools, stores and amusements have been provided for the laborers and their families and the people of Simons' feel very fortunate in being able to have the assistance of such a good concern as the Simons Brick company.

Several of the staff of the Los Angeles office live in Glendale, among the number being R. P. Isitt, 509 North Maryland, expert accountant and office manager, and H. B. Howeth, 329 North Orange.

SIBERELL RESTS AFTER BIG JOBS

Some one has said that "most anyone can handle a small job, but when it comes to big contracts then the best men are picked for the task." This seems to have been the case when H. P. Siberell, of 224 West Milford street, was engaged to make the excavations and put in the foundation for the Lawson and Webb-Emory buildings. And the record Mr. Siberell made on this job is one that shows he thoroughly understands his business and can "deliver the goods."

The two jobs included the moving of 500 cubic yards of dirt and the building of foundation work covering these two large buildings, and Mr. Siberell agreed to do the job in six weeks, and he did it. This is considered a remarkable feat by men who are experienced and know the nature of the work undertaken. But this is nothing new for Mr. Siberell for he has had similar jobs in many of the Southern California cities, and he has always made good. There is no job too large nor too small for him to handle.

Brown Had Two Big Building Jobs

T. S. Brown, painting and decorating contractor, has been a busy man lately. Besides doing all the painting and decorating work on the H. S. Webb building he also had the contract for painting and decorating on the Lawson building. The latter job is about completed and demonstrates that Mr. Brown understands his business and can handle any job regardless of its size.

Mr. Brown has been doing work in and around Glendale for a long time and has given good satisfaction. He has had a big run of business which demonstrates that he has been delivering the goods. At present he is doing the painting and decorating on many new buildings, among them being the Roger Bentley home in the foothills. Mr. Brown lives at La Crescenta, and his rural phone address is Box 140, Route No. 1.

J. B. DONER BACK AT HIS LAWSON OFFICES

J. B. Doner, one of the reliable real estate brokers of Glendale, whose activities were retarded for several months due to influenza, is back in the harness again, and has elegant offices in the Lawson building.

Mr. Doner was for a long time located on South Brand, but surrendered his offices to give way to the Quality store, which had leased the building, and which has since been operating a ladies' ready-to-wear establishment.

"I don't intend to do a great lot of business," said Mr. Doner in speaking of his intentions, "but it is hard for me to keep out of the game and I want to do my part in making Glendale the greatest city of its class in America."

Mr. Doner is doing considerable building and is considered a very reliable business man.

HORN & McDILL'S LAWSON SUITE IS BUSY PLACE

Horn & McDill, real estate brokers and live wire boosters, have fine offices in the Lawson building and notwithstanding this is the dull season of the year in their line, have had a big run of business right along. Both are busy taking care of buyers of homes and lots in Glendale.

With a long and varied experience in this line both gentlemen are well equipped to give the best possible service to prospective buyers, and it is no wonder they are enjoying a good run of business now.

COYE ENTERS THE INSURANCE GAME

C. Milford Coye, who has been a resident of Glendale for the past two years, has opened offices in the Lawson building, and will engage in the insurance business. He will handle everything in insurance, as will be seen from his advertisement which appears in this 4-page section of the Glendale Daily Press.

Mr. Coye has taken over the insurance companies heretofore handled by Calvin Whitings, and will be able to give service in any line of insurance desired. He also makes the statement that the rates are the lowest, and that he has many of the biggest companies in the world. Mr. Coye is a great booster for Glendale, and believes this little city is destined to grow many times its present size.

LAWSON BUILDING MONUMENT TO FAITH IN FUTURE OF THE CITY HELD FOR MANY YEARS

John W. Lawson Crowns Seventeen Years of His Residence Here With Huge Structure, First of Its Kind in Glendale; Planned for Growth

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

Seventeen years ago John W. Lawson, then a comparatively young man, decided to go west from Michigan and grow up with the country. He came to Glendale, California. He is still adventuring, trying to keep pace with the land of his adoption, and helping it to grow bigger and bigger.

In a few days he will celebrate the completion of a beautiful four-story building, known as the Lawson block, at the southwest corner of Wilson and Brand boulevard; and it is his pride that he has been one of the pioneers in changing the skyline in Glendale.

and bringing big buildings, metropolitan in character, to this city, which he thinks has a great future. He predicts a population of 75,000 by 1928. Within three years he anticipates seeing ten-story buildings in the downtown district.

"The impetus of population will bring it about," he declares. "Pasadena, with a population of 65,000 already has an 8-story structure and is planning a 10-story one. Long Beach, with a population of 80,000, has a 12-story block."

The Lawson building, which is setting such a fine pace for the business district of Glendale, will probably be regarded at some future day as a monument of the most interesting period in the upbuilding of the municipality. The ground upon which it stands, together with a commodious two-story house, and the 50 feet occupied by the Webb building, was purchased a comparatively few years ago, during the war period, by Miss Myrtle Baldwin and her sisters for a price said to be in the neighborhood of $12,000. They sold it to a syndicate composed of Messrs. Doner, Burn and Jones for a reported price of $35,000. Not long after that it was bought by Mr. Lawson for $42,000, and he in turn sold the inside 50 feet to E. U. Enns, practically clearing the cost of his own lot.

The building in which the beautiful marble facing of the elevator entrance is now being placed, will be free of workmen in about two weeks. It is of the Class B type, four stories and basement, and is practically fire proof. Before it was started a 15-year lease had been made with H. S. Kress & Co., as tenants of the first floor and basement, representing 14,000 square feet of floor space and at a rental which under the terms of the lease will increase automatically as the business of the company grows.

In the other three stories of the building are 66 office rooms, all of which have been leased except about ten, which will probably soon find tenants. It was constructed with a special view to its occupancy by professional men, doctors, dentists, etc., and they have been quick to appreciate the advantages it offers. Four physicians have taken suites of five rooms each and its list of doctor tenants includes E. T. Remmen, R. M. Ritchie, Edward Swift, L. Y. Wood, G. Kaemmerling, R. C. Logan, F. N. Arnold, R. E. Chase, G. A. Campbell and W. S. Fowler. To these men the light, airy apartments, the day and night hot water and compressed air service are of great value. But men engaged in realty and other lines of business are not excluded and so the bulletin at the foot of the stairs records the names of J. B. Doner, W. A. Horn, George D. McDill, E. Milford Coye, Arthur E. Low.

At the present time the approximate income from the building as reported by Mr. Lawson is $4000 per month, representing a gross return of something over 14 percent on the valuation of $325,000 which he puts upon the property. The lot, he says, is reasonably worth $100,000, and the building has cost $225,000.

And speaking of monuments, the Lawson block is another feather in the cap of Architect Alfred Priest who designed it, and was built by Elmer Elliott, who had the contract for the Tuesday afternoon club house, who has constructed some of our school buildings, and is now engaged on the Burn building at the northeast corner of Maryland and Broadway.

Six men will be regularly employed as care takers in the Lawson block, four as janitors and two as elevator operators, and Mr. Lawson is himself acting as agent of the building.

When his most urgent responsibilities are over in connection with the building, Mr. Lawson wants to take life a little easier, and retire in a measure from the building game, he says.

He has built and sold in Glendale, he reports, over 250 houses. The next one he starts, he hopes, will be upon a lot in Kenneth Heights, which he has purchased as a permanent home for himself and family.

Y. M. I.-Y. L. I. AT SANTA CRUZ

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Aug. 3.—Santa Cruz will be the scene for the many delegates who will be here August 20-22 to attend the annual grand councils of the Young Men's Institute and the Young Ladies' Institute. Special trains are being scheduled from San Francisco and other nearby points.

COKER & TAYLOR SUPPLIES PLANT TO BUILDING

Lawson Equipment Is Sample of Fine Plumbing Well Done

Coker & Taylor, 209 South Brand, are being congratulated on the way in which they did the plumbing in the new Lawson building. Incidentally, this Glendale firm has also secured the contract to do the plumbing work on the six-story Security Trust & Savings bank building now under construction. Coker & Taylor are well equipped to do any work in their line—from the biggest building down to the smallest house. They carry a complete line of stoves and plumbing fixtures.

Local Establishment Furnishes Hardware

The Wilson-Bell Hardware company, well-known concern of Glendale, have recently completed the hardware work of the Lawson building. They furnished all the necessary material along this line for the entire building.

The excellent work on their work on this new structure is evidence of the work done by this firm. All of the finished hardware is of the famous Corbin make. Besides this finished work, they furnished also all of the rough hardware necessary on the Lawson building.

The reason of their success is undoubtedly due to their belief that work well done gives lasting satisfaction. Their business is increasing daily and at present they have two different stores in Glendale. Besides the hardware line, they carry a complete stock of sporting goods, kitchen utensils, tools and cutlery.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—The population of Greater Vancouver is 226,524 persons.

BRICK WORK IS DONE BY H. E. BETZ

H. E. Betz has the honor of having done all the brick work on the Lawson building, and while Mr. Betz does not do any "crowding over the job," he says it is one of the best pieces of work he has ever handled; and he has had the contract for many larger buildings outside of Glendale.

With more than eighteen years of experience in brick and concrete work Mr. Betz has seen Glendale and adjacent cities grow from small villages to thriving and populous cities. Even Los Angeles has "done some growing," according to Mr. Betz since he started in the game. Betz's motto is to "do the work well and at the right price," and as a result he has been kept busy all the time. He has just completed the brick work on the Glendale Daily Press building, on North Brand, which is one of the biggest jobs he has had in the city.

"While I am busy," said Mr. Betz, "I am always ready to take on another job, and I use the best material and the best mechanics I can get."

LETTUCE LANDS IN BIG DEMAND

WATSONVILLE, Calif., Aug. 3.—Acreage for growing lettuce for the market is in demand in the vicinity of Watsonville since it was reported that the lettuce crop from 12 acres near here had been sold to Los Angeles distributors for $9000.

Building Today for Tomorrow

The names of the builders of the Lawson Bldg. will not be forgotten.

Another thing which will be remembered is the fact that this is the first four-story building erected in Glendale—and that for some time it was Glendale's only four-story building.

This building exemplifies the most progressive step made in the building line in Glendale, and paves the way for like undertakings in the future.

BABSON SAYS FARM OUTLOOK IS CRITICAL

Next Few Weeks Will Decide Fate of Year

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Aug. 3.—Roger W. Babson issued the following statement today regarding the crop situation. Mr. Babson is not as bearish regarding the immediate condition of the farmer as are many of his contemporaries, but he does feel that the farming situation will reach a crisis this fall.

"Twenty years ago the great news item affecting industries, commerce and business in general was the monthly report of the crop situation. For days before these crop reports were issued, bankers, manufacturers and merchants would speculate on their probable figure. For days after these crop reports were issued, newspapers would have editorials and comments thereon. I well remember when the telegraph lines and the ticker service would be held up pending the issue of the monthly crop report in Washington. Such an interest, however, no longer exists. Crop reports are now issued without much comment. There is little or no suspense and speculation. Whether we have become hardened to the situation or whether more important things have come into our lives, only the future can tell.

"Crops, however, are still a very important factor, for they are the basis of American prosperity. Unless the farmer is prosperous, the nation cannot be prosperous. Nearly a third of our population is dependent upon the crops for its income, especially on such crops as wheat and corn. If these farmers cannot make money, they cannot buy goods. The farmers supply the greatest buying power of the country. When the farmer loses money, the buying power of the country is seriously curtailed. This is one of the great reasons for the bearish attitude taken today by financiers. The farming centers are depressed. It is possible, of course, that condition during the next few months may entirely change the situation for the better. The only point I desire to make is that the farmer has reached a very critical period and the next few months will determine whether a year of effort will give him a profit or a loss. A bushel of grain must bring in exchange—that is, in other goods—as much as it brought in pre-war times before this country can have real prosperity.

"At the close of the war America was raising the grain for itself and a large part of Europe. Since the war Europe has seeded down large areas and has correspondingly increased production of grain. Other countries, such as Canada, the Argentine, and Australia, owing to cheaper labor costs, are competing keenly with American farmers and are under-selling American grain in Liverpool, the wheat market of the world. As a result, the American farmer is facing a bumper crop and at the same time carrying over about one hundred million bushels from last year's crop. And it is very difficult to increase the consumption of wheat through any advertising or other propaganda. This puts our American farmers in a very critical situation. Hence, during the next few months the crop reports, not only of this country but the other great countries, should be studied very carefully. The American farmer should not yet give up hope. As stated, something may happen, in this or some other country, which may entirely change the situation one way or the other. One thing, however, we all should keep in mind, namely, that unless the farmer is prosperous the rest of us cannot be prosperous. Hence, it is up to all of us to help the farming situation in every practical way.

"This agricultural situation is largely responsible for the drop in the Babson chart from its high point of 11 per cent above normal in March to 4 per cent below normal, where it stands at the present time. The truth is that the farmers are greatly curtailing their buying and this is being reflected throughout all industries. When the farmer stops buying from the retailer, the retailer stops buying from the manufacturer, and the manufacturer shuts down his plant. It is easy to tell them that they must suffer with the rest, but the fact is that the farmers are suffering more than the rest. Moreover, the action of the stock market and commodity markets today is largely due to this suffering of the farmers."

BOOTLEGGERS WARNED

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3 (United Press).—The bootlegger accused of manufacturing moonshine hereafter will be given jail sentences every time in Superior Judge Ward's court, according to recent announcement by the judge. Judge Ward declared violators of the dry law need not appeal for leniency, as it would be denied.

Reliable Contractor a Very Busy Man

Few contractors in Glendale have enjoyed the run of business given Elmer Elliott, who was the general contractor on the Lawson building, and is now erecting a big building at the corner of Maryland and East Broadway.

Mr. Elliott has had a continuous run of business during even the dull times. If there have been any dull times, it has been due to the class of work done has made a reputation for Mr. Elliott that is an enviable one indeed. People know when they employ him the work will be done right and he is kept busy all the time.

$10,000,000 Depot to Have Jail, Movie and Hospital

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Every thing from jail to movie theatre is provided for in plans of the main building of the new union station here, construction of which already is under way.

The miniature jail has been designed for the safe keeping of prisoners being transported from one city to another for trial. In the basement, the plans show, will be a laundry for the use of immigrant women. In another section of the building plans have been made for the installation of a morgue.

A dispensary and hospital to care for either railway employees or travelers will be located in another section.

DEMPSEY IS GOOD SPORT, SAYS M'AULIFFE

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (United Press).—Jack McAuliffe, the genial lightweight and the only champion who ever retired undefeated from the ring, has an idea that Jack Dempsey may yet come into the popularity that up to the time of the present champion has always come as a heritage to heavyweight title holders.

Dempsey, as is well known, is not a hero in the public eye, for reasons that are hard to explain. It might be going too far to say that Dempsey is the most unpopular champion on the long list, because Jack Johnson held even a lower place in the estimation of the public.

Johnson brought disfavor upon himself by his conduct after he had won the championship from Jim Jeffries, but Dempsey has done nothing since he won the title from Jess Willard to bring discredit upon himself, or on the game that has been so good to him.

Dempsey's war record got him in bad with the public and while most everyone has forgotten there was such a thing as a big war, the impression still lingers that Dempsey didn't do something when he had the chance.

Friends of the champion and those who are broad-minded enough to go back to the days leading up to the war, know that Dempsey was largely the victim of circumstances and poor advice.

McAuliffe believes that a fight with Luis Firpo, the South American giant, will do much to win for Dempsey the public esteem that he deserves. Until the time that Dempsey is accepted as a national representative against a foreigner, he will not have the opportunity to get himself back into favor, McAuliffe believes.

"Carpenter was the first foreign fighter to be cheered over an American and that can be explained," McAuliffe says. "The war records of the two fighters was the big issue there and the fight was staged at a time when the hardships of the war was rather a fresh memory in the eyes of the public."

"John L. Sullivan gained his greatest popularity when he fought Mitchell, the sentiment being 'our champion against a foreigner.' When Dempsey meets Firpo, unless the animosity against Dempsey is too deep rooted to be pulled out, the American public will rally the same way behind the champion."

"Indications of this were shown in the Firpo-Willard fight when the crowd arose spontaneously and yelled for Willard to win when he rallied and seemed to have a chance. The sentiment there was clearly for an American against a foreigner, because Willard during his regime as champion, was hardly more popular than Dempsey."

"Through all his trials and troubles, Dempsey has been such a good sport that some time sentiment is bound to change in his favor. He never has grumbled or complained. He has never made answer to accusations that were manifestly unfair and untrue and he has never shown malice toward the crowds that practically razed him on his two last appearances in the ring."

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE FRIEND

I shall walk with him in the shadow,
In sorrow's familiar land,
I shall whisper a word of comfort
And lend him a strong, warm hand
I shall watch like a brother above him
If he shall be weak and worn,
And always and ever shall love him,
Till night from the break of morn

I shall laugh with him in the sunlight
When the sky is a cloudless blue,
And side by side we shall wander
The paths as two boys might do.
I shall never chide or scold him,
When the time of his weakness comes
But steady and lift and hold him
In the manner of lifelong chums

And when he does well I shall praise him,
And offer him then my hand,
And if any weakness betrays him,
I shall always understand.
And the heart of me shall be tender
And the voice of me shall be kind,
And what he needs I shall render
The best gift I can find.

Yes, Friend of Mine, it comes welling
Up in the heart of me
The story that I am telling
Of just what a friend should be.
And the things I have writ for your reading
I know in my soul are true
For that's what my own soul's needing,
And that's what I want from you

DE MOLAY BUILDS FOR CITIZENSHIP

Quite a number of persons labor under the false impression that the Order of DeMolay is a Junior Masonic fraternity. This is not the case, however, as Masonry prohibits addressing any man along the lines of affiliation. Free Masonry is interested in its success, just as it is interested in the success of schools, churches and good citizenship.

DeMolay is a boys' fraternity or the sons of Master Masons and their chums, between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one, teaching one of parents, reverence, patriotism, purity, courtesy, comradeship and fidelity. Its purpose is to make better boys, better men and better citizens. It is rendering a real service in the community life by instilling on a practical application of the ideals exemplified in the degrees.

The present day tendency of the average American boy to live in a world apart from his parents is occasioned by the mad rush of modern civilization.

The complexity of modern life, especially in the larger cities, requires the constant time, attention and interest of the average school boy in the affairs of his school, his classes, his clubs and other fraternal organizations. He has so many outside interests that his time and attention are taken away from the environment of the home with the result that the old type of family life, of close association between parents and their children, tends to disappear.

It is the aim of DeMolay and should be the object of every organization interested in boys, to inculcate in their minds a whole some affection for home and family and a regard for the institutions of respectability.

BURGLAR WAS IN HURRY
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3 (United Press).—Just about the most "cheeky" and "crusty" burglar on record robbed Mrs. Eleanor J. Smith of $25, according to her story to police. She was awakened by the man coming into the bedroom of her apartment and jumped out of bed and called police. The man came right on into her room and took $25 from her purse while she summoned police over the phone. As she hung up the receiver, the intruder jumped out of the window onto the fire escape and fled.

Dr. Roy V. Hogue, Dentist
Security Bank Bldg., desires to announce the association of

Dr. Wm. E. Jenkins

of Portland, Oregon, in his office and practice, feeling certain the same courteous and efficient treatment will be maintained. Dr. Hogue intends to devote some months to rest and dental study, resuming practice again.
